Year Eight Macbook Program
Compulsory Parent/Student Briefing
7.00pm Monday 6 February
Doyle Centre

This briefing is compulsory because of the importance of the program to your son/daughter’s education; the high costs involved; the incidence of damage and additional costs; the ethical, legal and moral responsibilities involved. Our partnership with you is vital to your child’s education.

P & F Meetings
Second Tuesday at 6.00pm College Meeting Room
14 February - 13 March - 8 May - 12 June - 14 August - 11 September - 9 October - 13 November

Our Parents and Friends Association serves the College in a number of ways providing: a forum for issues to be raised and discussion to be held between parents and the College Principal and administration; guidance and advice to the Principal in the leadership of the College; oversight of the expenditure of P & F Levies of approximately $104,000; and leadership/support for particular events. (Art Show 2010, Fete 2011, P & F BBQ.)

Attending meetings will give you an insight into and appreciation of, what really happens and how we run the College while signalling to your son/daughter how highly you value their education. All involved are busy people who prefer effective meetings and I encourage you to attend, particularly in the early years of your child’s time at the College.

P & F BBQ – Year Eight
6.00pm Friday 17 February

The purpose of this BBQ is to welcome Year Eight students and their families to the College, to introduce Year Eight Pastoral teachers and to allow parents to make some early connections with each other as their child starts school. It’s a demanding week for Year Eight parents with the MacBook Air program Briefing on Monday as well. However, the next Year Eight events for Parents are as we begin Term Two: 20 April – Principal’s Awards; 24 April- Parent/Teacher Interviews. Make the effort to come along and meet other Year Eight parents.

Rain, Lockers, Buildings

As much as delays have made the start to the year difficult, the staff and students have just got on with school. My appreciation to the cleaning staff from Missile Cleaning, our grounds and maintenance staff and the plumbing, electrical, air-conditioning and other contractors for their work to ensure school was ready. By the end of next week we hope the new lockers for Year Eight and Nine will be in place and the inconvenience to students of this delay is at an end. Thanks, particularly to these students and the staff who are assisting with the management of the consequences. Also particular appreciation to teachers and classes timetabled for the Art & Technology Classrooms (I –Block) who, under Mr Connor’s rescheduling, have coped with the inconvenience in good spirit.

College Opening Liturgy
11.00am Tuesday 7 February
Doyle Centre
(Revised date from Wed 8 Feb)

The Opening Liturgy brings the community together to thank God and ask for God’s blessing on our endeavours this year. Senior Leaders will receive their leadership badges and Year 8 students will be presented with a College Lanyard. Parents are most welcome.

College Swimming Carnival

The swimming carnival was held on Friday at the Miami Pool. In addition to decide the winning house for 2012, the carnival determines our College representatives for the Oceanic District Carnival on Friday 17 February.

From there swimmers go on to the South Coast District Carnival held over two days 27 & 29 February.

Results of our Carnival will be in next week’s newsletter.

Mr Chris Noonan
Principal

Lord, may this candle be a light for you to enlighten me in my difficulties and decisions.
May it be a fire for you to burn out of me all pride, selfishness and impurity.
May it be a flame for you to bring warmth into my heart towards my family, my friends and all who meet me.
Through the intercession of Mary, Virgin and mother, I place in your care those I come to remember, especially…
Lord, I cannot stay here long with you. In leaving this candle, I wish to give you something of myself.
Please help me to continue my prayer into everything I do this day.

Amen.
ASSISTANT PRINCIPAL - SENIOR CURRICULUM

QCS: Last Monday the entire Year 12 cohort had a very successful immersion day on the Core Skills test all OP eligible students must sit. All other (Ranking) students are entitled to sit the test, but can opt out if they wish. We needed to inform the students extensively on how the test operates and how each and every student can best prepare for the two days of external testing to take place at the end of August. I congratulated the students on how involved and cooperative they were on the day. They had a first attempt at an extensive writing task, which the external providers, the Might Minds group have taken away to professionally mark. Feedback will follow in the coming weeks. There are 2 other immersion days: Wednesday 15th February and Friday 9th March; where they will be introduced to the Short Response Items and the Multiple Choice Testing processes. Students who opt out will need to have a form returned and signed by their parents before hand.

ASSESSMENT OUTLINE: We are currently completing the Assessment Schedule for Year 11 and 12 and will publish these at the end of the week. A copy will also go onto the College Intranet. We encourage all parents and students to access this regularly and continue to monitor and plan ahead.

Talking Teen Talk

Here are some tips to help you draw closer and not miss the natural opportunities to communicate that happen in the course of your day.

1. Talk about the little things - These are the unemotional, uncontroversial daily things of life. For example ask them what went on in their day, their favourite things, something pleasant they have done.

2. Ask them open-ended questions - Try the What, Where, How, When, Why questions so they can't just give a “yep” response.

3. Tune into their interests - It may not be your interest but it is theirs. Find a way to make them interesting to you.

4. Do something when you are talking - Boys particularly don't like to sit and have a chat. Pick an activity that you are both comfortable doing, such as jogging, fishing, cooking or playing games.

5. Better yet – do a project together - Paint the garage, decorate the spare room, start a garden… ask for their ideas.

6. Discuss hot topics - Religion, politics, and teen issues (choose the ones that are relevant to your family).

As your adolescent or teen begins the year no doubt there will be some great opportunities to connect with them. Here are some tips to get you started:

1. Talk about the little things
2. Ask them open-ended questions
3. Tune into their interests
4. Do something when you are talking
5. Better yet – do a project together
6. Discuss hot topics
TALKING TEEN TALK

Welcome to all new families and returning families!

As your adolescent or teen begins the year no doubt there will be some great opportunities to connect with them. Here are some tips to help you draw closer and not miss the natural opportunities to communicate that happen in the course of your day.

It is interesting to note that when teens were surveyed about their families, one of their top responses was that they wanted their parent more involved in their life! Active communication, as it is called, involves a meaningful dialogue that takes into account the teens need for acceptance, self-respect, encouragement and security. As a parent try to understand and respond in a nonjudgmental way. Try to share information openly and honestly. Experts caution to not only communicate when there are problems but more regularly so the line is open for when problems crop up. Research has shown that the amount of trouble that teens get into is directly related to how much talking is going on at home. So, the less talking going on, the more likely the teen will be getting into trouble.

Here are some tips to get you started:

1. TALK about the little things- These are the unemotional, uncontroversial daily things of life. For example ask them what went on in their day, their favourite things, something that you see driving home... there are many opportunities to talk and listen.

2. ASK them open-ended questions- Try the What, Where, How and Why questions so they can’t just give a “yep” response.

3. TUNE INTO their interests- It may not be your interest but it is their world. Ask them about their favourite band, computer game, fashion items, opinions...

4. DO SOMETHING when you are talking- Boys particularly don’t like to sit and have a chat. Pick an activity that you are both comfortable doing, such as jogging, fishing, cooking together etc. and use that time to connect and communicate.

5. Better yet- DO A PROJECT together- Paint the garage, decorate the spare room, start a garden... ask for their ideas and input or better yet give them a budget and see what they come up with! You may be pleasantly surprised.

6. DISCUSS hot topics- religion, politics, and teen issues (choose topics you are pretty sure they are most likely not into or else they will think you have an agenda). Use this opportunity to express your views and why you think what you do. Ask them what they think, listen and try not to be judgmental.

7. RESPECT their boundaries- If they don’t want to talk at a particular time, respect that decision and don’t force it. Let them know that you are there to listen and wait for the signal. Then when they come to you DROP EVERYTHING to listen. (Or as soon as is reasonably possible and let them know that and keep to it).

8. BE CAREFUL not to lecture or use put-downs- As they begin to share more and you learn more be careful not to force your opinion (lecturing). Also while you may think it is playful interacting, sensitive teens don’t respond AT ALL to put-downs. They are a sure way to turn them off communicating with you.

From the Editor

What a wonderful opportunity presented itself, with the visit this week of former Marymount student and 2005 Vice Captain Maria Lewis. When Maria advised me that she would be leaving the coast shortly to take up a position with the Sydney Telegraph, I couldn’t let the occasion slip by. We thank Maria for her generosity of time in sharing some special moments with us, both at the full school assembly, then later at the student reporters’ meeting.

Rochelle and Jasmine reflect on Marie’s message.

Applications for new and existing student reporters are currently being processed. Application forms are available from SAO.

Griffith Science Experience

science - Noun

1. The intellectual and practical activity encompassing the systematic study of the structure and behaviour of the physical and natural world through observation and experiment - according to Google dictionary.

... Personally, I think they forgot to mention fun.

Over three fun-filled days in early January, I was fortunate enough to attend the Griffith Science Experience of 2012 with two fellow Marymount students. This program is an opportunity for students in grades 9 and 10 to learn more about the weird and wonderful world of science.

Milo tin lids flying to the ceiling, gloves with foam tumbling over their rims, organs to reconstruct, lamb hearts to dissect, thumbs to be molded, electric circuits to be soldered in and so much more!

Griffith University Campus was our home for the duration of the program. Here we received insightful lectures on all the different sciences, which gave us a taste of what we may be looking into when it’s time to choose a path after high school. We came across many like-minded people whose words were more than inspiring. Not to mention all of the wonderful friends we made!

Each morning we were up at the crack of dawn for a long day of gross and great endeavors – including the lovely process of measuring and assessing our saliva. Proud to be considered “science-nerds”, we all buckled down, ready to jam-pack everything in and not miss a blink!

Meeting Maria Lewis

On Tuesday, I was fortunate enough to meet former Marymount student, 2005 Vice Captain and now journalist extraordinaire Maria Lewis. I was inspired more and more as Maria spoke of how she has reached her goals; using “dogged determination”, as she put it. This sheer determination has allowed her to have her dream career in journalism.

She has already met many famous and notable people, and her infectious enthusiasm has helped her achieve this. Her words have motivated me, and many others, to work hard and never give up. We can be whatever we want to be. But it’s up to us to work for it.

A big thank you to Maria Lewis for making time to speak with us this week.

FROM THE EDITOR

VIA THE YEARBOOK DESK
The start of our 2012 schooling year has brought upon many new challenges yet to be faced across all of the grades and has brought on many new adventures to embark on. For instance, I’m sure the new Year 8s are feeling excited but anxious about starting high school, and our Year 11s are slightly apprehensive to begin the daunting journey that is senior schooling, myself included. This year however, has proven to have already brought along a pleasant surprise. An ex-student from Marymount, Maria, who was in the graduating class of ‘05, passionately addressed our student and teacher faculty at our full school assembly. Maria, who is now a prominent Australian journalist has interned for the media entertainment magazine empire and has continued her work running the films reporting department with a very renowned company.

As she spoke to us, she shared her stories from when she was at school and how the fact that she worked so hard back then paid off to lead her on the fabulous journey she has taken to become someone who’s interviewed the likes of Tim Burton, Steven Spielberg and the Twilight cast, just to name a few; listening to her was both engaging and moving. It was truly inspirational to hear what she had to say to us as it has given us as students, a role model to aspire to. One cannot simply be to imagine the incredible experiences she’s had including attending the international Comic-Con in San Diego; you could feel the true Marymount pride throughout the room as she spoke. If there was one thing we can extract from her speech it was, that as you embark on your dream there are going to be people who are going to criticise, people who will disagree with you and tell you that you can’t; but your job is not to listen to those people and say to yourself that you can. I guess the infamous phrase ‘never say never’ sums it all up.

Though starting the new year has left some feeling of concern about what paths our futures may lead for us, I have a feeling this is going to be a good year. We now have the addition of our new visual arts facility beside the library, which will help in further aiding our education and broadening the Media and Arts departments at our school. I hope the Year 8s are fitting in nicely; our whole school welcomes you all, and truly, I know that our Year 11s are nothing but excited to be only two years away from the end of our high school life.

Ayla Beaufils
Year 11 reporter

As I hastily buttoned my tie onto my blouse on the first school morning rush of this year, I felt as though it was a symbolic representation of the start of my immersion into senior schooling. Grade 11: the beginning of the end.

Like many others at the College, I spent most of my holidays relaxing, socialising, eating and often sleeping in to mid-morning. So after this very enjoyable holiday, the only thing I was looking forward to, was the ability to use my brand new stationary. How I was wrong. Grade 11 has been pitted as the academically hardest schooling year in most students' lives. We have been reminded of this ‘fact’ at the start of every lesson. For many, including myself, this is quite daunting. However, after every teacher mentions this, they also state that this is only the case, if you make it the case.

Yes, teachers demand more work and studies become increasingly challenging that is a fact. But if we set up strict study habits, increase our work ethic and be determined to do well, then Grade 11 shouldn’t be as hard as it is said to be. Time management is the key. We’ve been told that if you are well organized and committed, you can achieve anything you set your mind to. And it’s true. With this at the forefront of my thoughts, I’m now extremely excited about the year ahead as we have so much to look forward to and so much to accomplish. My tie and pink stationary will only add to the fun adventure that is, my senior years.
